MONTHLY

NEWSLETTER

Dearly beloved in Christ,

As we enter the month of September, I greet each one of you and your families in the precious name of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. September brings before us a season of transition, reflection, gratitude, and renewed commitment. As we continue our journey of faith as a parish family, may this month help us to recognize God's presence in every circumstance, to use His gifts faithfully, and to become a blessing to our families, our Church, our community, and the nation in which we live. The Mar Thoma Church has given us meaningful themes for our September worship and meditation: Education for Transformation of Life, Women Who Trust God Fearless and Faithful, Productive Living the Best Is Yet to Come, and God's Unfailing Presence in Crises. These themes are not merely subjects for Sunday reflection but practical guidelines for Christian living.

On September 6, as we observe Education Sunday with the theme "Education for the Transformation of Life," we are reminded that true education is more than acquiring information or achieving professional success; it is the formation of wisdom, character, responsibility, and faith. Proverbs remind us to seek wisdom and understanding, and the Gospel reminds us that when Christ calls, our knowledge must become obedience and our learning must become service. Plato famously observed that education is the turning of the whole person toward what is good and true. For us as Christians, education must ultimately lead us toward Christ, who is the truth and the source of wisdom. Let us therefore encourage our children and young people not merely to pursue excellent careers but to develop excellent character, compassion, integrity, and a strong relationship with God. Parents, teachers, and the Church share a sacred responsibility in shaping the next generation. May our homes and Sunday School become places where knowledge is joined with faith, and where education transforms lives for the glory of God and the good of humanity.

As our nation observes Labor Day on September 7, we give thanks for the dignity of work and for all those whose labor contributes to the strength and well-being of our families and society. Work is not simply a means of earning a living; when offered faithfully to God, it becomes a vocation through which we participate in His purposes.

Let us remember workers, employers, professionals, caregivers, students, homemakers, first responders, and all who labor faithfully, and let us cultivate a Christian attitude toward work honesty, excellence, justice, humility, and service. Aristotle emphasized that excellence is developed through habitual practice. In the same way, Christian character is formed through faithful choices repeated day after day. Let us therefore not ask only, "What do I receive from my work?" but also, "How can my work become a blessing to others?"

September 11 reminds us of Patriot Day and calls us to remember those who lost their lives and those whose lives were forever changed by tragedy. In moments of national remembrance, Christians are called not only to remember but also to pray, to pursue peace, and to resist hatred and division. Jesus calls His followers to be peacemakers, and our response to the crisis must be marked by compassion rather than fear, faith rather than despair, and reconciliation rather than retaliation. We especially remember first responders, members of the military, law-enforcement officers, firefighters, medical professionals, and all who place themselves in harm's way for the protection of others. May God strengthen our nation and help us to become people who build bridges of understanding and communities of peace.

On September 13, as we observe Sevika Sangham Day with the theme "Women Who Trust God: Fearless and Faithful," we give thanks for the women of our Church whose faith, prayer, sacrifice, leadership, and service strengthen our families and the wider community. Scripture gives us many examples of women who trusted God in difficult circumstances and became instruments of His purpose. Deborah demonstrated courageous leadership, Priscilla faithfully participated in ministry, Mary offered herself to God with humility, and the women who gathered with the disciples remained faithful in prayer. Their lives remind us that faithfulness does not mean the absence of fear; it means trusting God even when fear is present. As Seneca wisely said, "Difficulties strengthen the mind, as labor does the body." May the women of our parish continue to serve with courage, wisdom, compassion, and steadfast faith, and may the Church continue to recognize, encourage, and strengthen the God-given gifts and leadership of women in every sphere of life.

September 13 is also observed in the United States as National Grandparents Day, giving us a beautiful opportunity to recognize the gift of our elders. Their lives carry memories, experiences, sacrifices, lessons, and testimonies of God's faithfulness. We encourage every family to spend time with grandparents and senior members, listen to their stories, learn from their experiences, pray with them, and make them feel valued and loved. A generation that forgets its elders risks losing part of its wisdom and identity. Our Christian faith calls us to honor those who have gone before us and to pass faith from one generation to another.

On September 20, Senior Citizens' Sunday invites us to reflect on "Productive Living: The Best Is Yet to Come." Age should never be understood merely as a decline of usefulness. Every season of life has a God-given purpose, and the wisdom, experience, prayer, encouragement, and service of our senior citizens remain invaluable gifts to the Church and society. The Bible teaches that those who are planted in the house of the Lord "will still bear fruit in old age" (Psalm 92:14). The best is yet to come not necessarily because every earthly circumstance will become easier, but because our hope is rooted in God's continuing purpose and the eternal future He has prepared for His children. Viktor Frankl, reflecting on human purpose, emphasized that life continues to have meaning even in difficult circumstances.

For the Christian, this hope is deeper still: our worth is not determined by age, productivity, income, physical strength, or social position, but by the love and calling of God. Let us therefore honor our senior citizens, care for them with dignity, invite them into meaningful participation, and receive from them the spiritual heritage they have accumulated through a lifetime of walking with God.

September also gives us an opportunity to reflect on our responsibilities as citizens. Constitution Day and Citizenship Day on September 17 remind us of the importance of constitutional principles, civic responsibility, justice, freedom, and the privileges and responsibilities of citizenship. As Christians living in the United States, we are called to be faithful followers of Christ and responsible citizens, respecting the dignity of every person, upholding truth, pursuing justice, and contributing positively to society. Our Christian identity should never lead us away from responsible citizenship; rather, it should inspire us to become people of integrity, compassion, honesty, and peace wherever God has placed us.

As we come to September 27 and meditate on "God's Unfailing Presence in Crises," we are reminded that crises are unavoidable, but we never have to face them alone. Scripture repeatedly assures us that God is our refuge and strength, an ever-present help in trouble (Psalm 46:1). The Christian response to crisis is not the denial of pain but the confidence that God remains present in the midst of pain. Epictetus taught that we cannot always control what happens to us, but we can govern our response to what happens. The Christian goes one step further: even when circumstances are beyond our control, they remain within God's loving care. When sickness comes, when families face uncertainty, when financial burdens arise, when relationships become difficult, when communities experience tragedy, or when the future appears unclear, let us hold firmly to the promise that God will never leave nor forsake His children. Crisis can become a place where faith is tested, prayer becomes deeper, compassion becomes stronger, and God's presence becomes more real.

Therefore, as a parish family, let September be a month in which we grow in wisdom, courage, gratitude, productivity, compassion, and trust. Let our education transform our lives, let our women continue to serve fearlessly and faithfully, let our senior citizens continue to bear fruit and inspire the next generation, and let every family learn to recognize God's unfailing presence in times of crisis. Let us remember that a meaningful Christian life is not measured merely by what we possess or accomplish, but by how faithfully we love God, serve others, and bear witness to Christ. May we become a community where children are nurtured, young people are encouraged, women are empowered for faithful service, elders are honored, families are strengthened, and those passing through difficult seasons find hope and companionship.

As we continue our ministries, worship, fellowship, and outreach during this month, I encourage every member of Mar Thoma Church Atlanta to participate prayerfully and wholeheartedly. Let us carry our faith beyond the walls of the church into our homes, workplaces, schools, neighborhoods, and wider community. May our lives reflect the words of the Apostle Paul: "Whatever you do, work at it with all your heart, as working for the Lord" (Colossians 3:23). May the Lord grant us wisdom to learn, courage to serve, strength to persevere, grace to care, and faith to trust Him in every season. May September become a month of spiritual renewal and a new beginning for each of us, and may our parish continue to shine as a faithful witness to Christ in Atlanta and beyond.

With prayers and greetings,

Rev. Jacob Thomas Anicad

Vicar
